
Attention News/Business Editors:

Mississauga Halton LHIN initiates search for a new CEO

MISSISSAUGA, ON, Feb. 7 /CNW/ - John Magill, Mississauga Halton Local Health Integration Network (LHIN) Board Chair today announced the resignation of its founding CEO, effective February 23 2007. In accepting his resignation, John Magill stated "Michael Fenn has provided outstanding leadership for the Mississauga Halton LHIN through its formation and development over the last 18 months. Magill stressed that the Board accepted Fenn's resignation with considerable regret but wished him all the best in his future endeavors." Fenn has accepted the position of CEO of the newly formed Greater Toronto Transportation Authority, a role which he describes as a "once in a lifetime opportunity."

The Mississauga Halton LHIN Board has established a search committee to lead the recruitment process for the new CEO. "We hope to have a new CEO in place as soon as possible," says Magill.

Fenn is currently on a two week vacation from February 5 to February 19. LHIN Board Chair John Magill will work with Senior Directors Scott McLeod and Narendra Shah to ensure continuity of CEO functions and a smooth transition over the next few months.

The Mississauga Halton LHIN Board and staff are fully committed to moving forward with the directions and priorities that have been established under Fenn's leadership.

For further information: John Magill, Chair, Mississauga Halton LHIN Board at (905) 337-7131 ext 207

MISSISSAUGA HALTON LOCAL HEALTH INTEGRATION NETWORK - More on this organization

News Releases
(2)

Photo Archive